WITH PENCIL AND SHEARS

Hems of Interest Gathered From Here and There

The family of Surveyor D. S. Whitfield came up from Ketchikan by the last Humboldt.

Looker & Dunningberg came in Saturday morning with a small raft of logs, which they put in at Mill Creek.

Mrs. Geo. Card returned on the last Humboldt from Juneau, where she has been in the hospital for treatment.

Dr. Emery went up the river by the first steamer, and will practice his profession at Telegraph Creek for a short time.

After finishing up his part in the survey of the township, Mr. Whitfield, Sr., returned home to Ketchikan by the last Humboldt.

Dena, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Tamaree, died at the family home in this town, Friday, June 26, 1908, aged about twelve years. Her remains were buried Monday in the Tamaree lot of the Wrangell cemetery, Adjutant Robt. Smith conducting the ceremony.

Billy Richardson's logging machine has been moved to the south end of Wrangell Island, where the crew will put in a raft of logs.

Wm. Lewis is still limping about from the effects of his accident of several weeks ago. One little pin can do a lot of damage sometimes.

Judge James Wickersham has announced his candidacy for delegate to congress, and wires to southeastern Alaska soliciting support.

The last of the actual surveying of the Wrangell townsite was done last Friday, and surveyor Whitfield is now finishing up the maps and plats.

Mr. Downing, the new operator for the local cable station, arrived here on the Humboldt and reported for duty Wednesday, last week.

The tourists on the Spokane seemed to be anxious to procure copies of the Wrangell prospectus, nearly every one taking from one to a half dozen.

The old favorite steamer Cottage City is scheduled to sail from Seattle for southeastern Alaska today. The Humboldt is to be taken off the run for about a month.

A post card from Capt. Orr last week stated that the Ragnhild was on the way to the Chicof Island mining claims, where development work is soon to be commenced.

For Sale, Cheap.—J. S. Mundy 7x12 hoisting donkey, suitable for pile driving and logging, with complete logging outfit. Apply to William H. Richardson, Wrangell, Alaska.

Ketchikan is to have a big Fourth of July celebration, the program being published in the Miner. The Ketchikan patriotic spirit is as high as ever, even if copper has dropped a little.

Sergt. J. A. and Mrs. Perry left on the Humboldt for their new station at Seattle. Mrs. Perry will visit with relatives in Oregon, after which they will settle down to keeping house in the Sound metropolis.

The City of Seattle arrived north last Monday morning, with mail, passengers and freight for this place. This is the Seattle's first tourist voyage for this season, but there were only two people to make the round trip.

If the presence of drummers is any indication of increasing business, there ought to be something doing in Wrangell before long. The Seattle brought seventeen knights of the grip to interview our merchants.

Among the passengers on the Spokane were Lieut. G. A. Hartman and wife of Pendleton, Oregon, who were making their first visit to Alaska. Lieut. Hartman and this writer served in the same regiment in the Spanish war, and each was agreeably surprised in meeting the other here.

Manager Buschman of the Northwestern Fisheries Co., was in town several days during the week, having come up from Santa Ana in the Taku Jack. Mr. Buschman has been visiting all the canneries of the company in Alaska, and reports everything favorable for a full pack this season.

The tourist steamer Spokane arrived here from the north shortly after noon, Thursday, and laid at the wharf until 8:00 o'clock, allowing her passengers to take in the many interesting sights at and near Wrangell. Among the passengers was a daughter of P. T. Barnum, the showman.

While playing around the hotel one day last week, little Neal Grant fell off the platform to the rocks, a distance of several feet, striking on his head and shoulders and sustaining some severe cuts and bruises. The little fellow is again playing outdoors, apparently as "chipper" as ever.

After almost a year's absence, during which time he visited his old home in Germany and various portions of America, Wrangell's worth ex-Mayor Peter C. Jensen came up in the last Humboldt to spend a month or two. He is representing a German sausage manufactory, and promised this writer a sample of his goods, but up to the time of this writing we haven't seen it.

Capt. Wagner of the Star of Bengal, "Gassie" Hansen, Ansell Babler and Geo. Snyder went over to Zarembo Island, Saturday, in quest of mowitch. Ansell killed one and captured one alive, while the rest of the party got 0. This was Ansell's first deer, and Mr. Babler senior says the young fellow has killed the same deer forty times since Sunday. The live deer is inclosed at the cannery.

CLEVELAND IS DEAD

Grover Cleveland, twenty-second president of the United States, and the last of the ex-presidents, died at Princeton, New Jersey, at 8:40 o'clock a. m., June 21, 1908. The end was not a surprise, as the deceased was suffering from cancer, which especially in the past few months had caused the distinguished man to grow gradually weaker. At the bedside with the attending physicians were Mrs. Cleveland, and Esther, Marion, Richard and Francis Grover, children of the ex-president.

Cleveland was born in Caldwell, Essex county, New Jersey, March 18, 1837. At the age of sixteen he became a clerk and assistant teacher in the New York institution for the blind; in 1855 he began to read Blackstone, and in the fall of that year was receiving four dollars a week for clerical work; he was admitted to the bar in 1859, but remained as clerk for three years for the firm with which he had studied, receiving a salary of $1,000 a year, a part of which he devoted to the support of his widowed mother, who died in 1882.

He was appointed assistant district attorney of Erie county in 1863, and held the office for three years; in 1865 he was the Democratic candidate for district attorney, but was defeated by his intimate friend, Lyman K. Bass; in 1870 he was elected sheriff of Erie county, and after a three years' term he formed a law partnership with his old friend and political antagonist, the firm name being Bass, Cleveland & Bissell.

In 1881 he was elected mayor of Buffalo by a majority of 1,530, the largest ever given a candidate in that city; in the following year he was elected governor of New York state by a majority of 192,000 votes. In November, 1884, he was elected the president of the United States, and was the only Democrat who was elected to that office after the war of the rebellion.

After Harrison's administration, Mr. Cleveland was again elected in 1892 by a plurality of 380,810.

He was married in the White House June 2, 1886, being the only president married there. His wife was Frances Folsom, the daughter of a friend and former law partner.

THE SYMBOL FOR TAFT

The fad of the Teddy bear, dear to the people, Reigned long in the land and then faded away.

When the flat went forth from the lords of convention That adipose William should carry the day.

Then vanished forever the Teddy bear's halo, The symbol of Theodore, swatter of graft;

And now it is up to the Toymakers' Union To plan us a suitable symbol for Taft.

Fall many a moon had the button-eyed Teddy, Constructed of sawdust and chamois and hair, Soothed children, been held in the laps of fair ladies; Provoking mere man in his envy to swear.

But now he has slipped from the realm of the present; And now it is up to the toymakers' craft

To labor anew for Columbia's fancy, And fix up a suitable symbol for Taft.

Ah, where are they bidden, the former years' fancies? Ping-pong, "Hiawatha," the Psyche knot hair, Alphonse and Gaston, the last Easter's bonnet Forshadow the fate of the stuffed Teddy bear;

Tossed back in the garret of discarded fancies They weep o'er the wound of forgetfulness' shaft;

Now let the toymakers proceed to get busy And build us a suitable symbol for Taft.

And what will the agile-brained toymakers fashion? What will be the form that is promised us soon?

Bird, beast, fish or insect, or, broadly distended, The sleek, silky sides of a racing balloon?

Miss Linhart Tuesday brought to this office a spray of lilac which measured nineteen inches one way by over twenty-four inches the other, and this beautiful flower grew out of doors in her yard. The bush was covered with blooms, and every one was perfect. Now, let's hear from you who live in the blistering heat of the states.

In such a country as this, in order to catch the mails, a newspaper must be sometimes printed on the day preceding the regular publication day, any sometimes contains statements that are not exactly correct. This paper last week stated that two fishing parties went out Wednesday, but such was not the case, the rain searing the parties out. We also stated that "Uncle John" Findlayson was off for Cassiar to work his claim. He will not go in this season, as he does not feel able to stand the hardships attending such a trip.

Wesley T. D. Selmar and Miss Mary Loftin were married at the Wrangell Hotel, Sunday evening, June 28, 1908, at 9:30 o'clock, Rev. H. P. Corser officiating at the ceremony.

Capt. Johnson, L. C. Patenaude and Dr. Shurick fished at Konk's Creek, Tuesday, and caught over a hundred fine trout. And Patenaude told us to state that it was a real hundred, and not the kind of hundred that Marshal Grant tells about.

"The paragraphs could have a good deal more fun with the name of Mrs. Kommissarzhevskaya if it was not such hard work to write it," says the Rochester Democrat and Chronicle. Bless you, neighbor, we don't mind that; it's good practice for our typewriters, and it's such a change from the names of Bryan, Day, Taft, Lawson and Hetty Green.

How widespread is the interest of workmen in one another's welfare, and how great their readiness to lend a hand in a time of trouble, has been most touchingly shown by the fund lately raised for one Massachusetts labor leader who was wounded, and for the family of another who was killed, by the revolver shots of an insane man. Both men were engaged in the discharge of their duty to organized labor at the time they were shot. The fund has come from every State in the Union and from labor organizations representing almost every department of industry. The total of nearly ten thousand dollars is a very substantial token of a feeling of brotherhood.

The two greatest faults of the American people are haste and sentimentality. We have as a nation our full share of pluck, of efficiency, of kindness and of sense. But we will not take the time to do things right in spite of tedium, and we will let our sentiments run away with our judgment. And these two things are the curse of our criminal administration. When angry, we cannot wait for a trial. But when the trial has been had, and the criminal condemned, then the very men who wanted to "lynch the fellow" will sign petitions for his pardon. And the result is that we have more murders, more lynchings and a smaller average of legal penalties exacted for crime than any other civilized land on earth.

By the burning of a schoolhouse in Collinwood, Ohio, recently, more than one hundred and seventy children lost their lives. They had practiced a regular fire-drill; they marched out as usual, singing; and their teachers kept their heads and acted promptly and heroically. Three things, however, were more powerful than training and courage. A partition obstructed access to the door; the fire-drill as practiced led to one exit only, instead of to both; and there were no adequate fire-escapes. The conditions in the Collinwood schoolhouse were no different from those in hundreds of other schoolhouses throughout the land, in any one of which a similar horror may occur at any time unless measures are at once taken to prevent it. It is the imperative duty of every parent who has a child in school anywhere in America personally to satisfy himself at once of these things: Is your child's schoolhouse provided with fire-escapes? Do the doors open outward, and are they always unlocked while school is in session? Is the fire-drill practiced regularly and at unexpected times? It is not enough to leave these questions to the school committee or the building inspector, state or city. The only sure way to know that things are as they should be is to make a personal inspection. No parent performs his whole duty who neglects to do it.

It is difficult to conceive the change which has been wrought in human life by modern hospitals. From the beginning of the Christian era the religious made an effort to reduce suffering by caring for the sick and aged. Compassion for pain became speedily a characteristic of the Christian. But although hospitals increased in number from the dark ages up to the middle of the nineteenth century, there was often reason to question their actual beneficence. The risks of infection were so multiplied by the assembling of numbers of sick people that it was doubtful how greatly human ills were diminished by the hospital. But with the knowledge of antiseptic methods all this has been changed, and to-day the beneficence of hospitals is immense and unquestioned. For their practical work they are largely dependent upon the devoted labor of women. The women nurses within and the women benefactors without the hospital walls are numbered by hundreds of thousands. In a great city the service of the hospitals is enormous. On "Hospital Sunday" London subscribes no less than four hundred thousand dollars for the support of its hospitals. A single one of them, situated in the Whitechapel district, among the very poorest people in the great city, has served six million patients since it was opened. It has more than eight hundred in its wards constantly. Fifty patients are operated on daily. When one thinks of the number of women who by day and by night, year in and year out, supply the wants and alleviate the pain of the patients in the great London hospital and in thousands of similar institutions over the whole uncivilized, Christianized world, one partly realizes what a mighty stream of compassion took its rise when a little group of men in Judea heard from the Master's lips His answer to the question, "Who is my neighbor?"

LITERARY BULLS.

For instance, the "Groom that Grogged from the Slain."

Macaulay once reviewed a poem in which a climax of absurdity was reached with this line:

And hearst each groan that gurgles from the slain.

The poetic license which lets a groan gurgle from a slain man is capable of letting him walk into town from the field of battle, collect the amount of his life insurance policy and hand it to his widow. This brings to mind the heroic warrior of whom it is said that "thrice he slew the slain" and the Irish member of Parliament who convulsed the House of Commons by exclaiming that he would die as a soldier first and a man afterward.

But, strange to say, Macaulay himself has made a similar blunder. In his "Battle of Lake Ragillus" the following lines occur:

The shouting of the slayers
And screeching of the slain.

Did these writers make these slips in the heat of battle, or were they testing the intellectual acuteness of their readers? There is a story of a German schoolmaster who used to call out his class in history and begin to tell them of the Thirty Years' War. "Yes, children," he would say, "this is a subject in which I am especially interested, as my grandfather often told me about it. He was a well-to-do innkeeper, and one day as he was standing in his doorway a mounted soldier came galloping up at a furious rate. 'What's the matter?' asked my grandfather. 'Matter enough,' answered the dragon. 'Don't you know that the Thirty Years' War has begun to-day?'" At this point the ancient pedagogue would pause and survey his class. Then a smile would overspread his rubicund countenance if a hand was raised and a boyish treble asked how the dragon knew the war would last thirty years. Perhaps our poets, too, would play the schoolmaster and smile if we should ask them how it is possible for the slain to groan or screech.—Pittsburg Gazette-Times.

Canaries Steamship Pets.

Few and far between are the steamships entering the port of Boston that cannot boast of a canary. No matter how battered and rusty the craft may be, one is pretty sure to find the canary somewhere in the rooms of the officers or crew. Its cage, as a rule, is a wonderful creation of brass wire and lace, and the canary itself usually is a singer whose trill and whistle are of the best.

The little songsters appear to enjoy life on the ocean. Seldom are they inconvenienced by the motion of the vessel, and the more the cage swings from its hook the more they warble. Sailors will tell you a canary is a mascot. Be that as it may, the canaries are great pets. Frequently one may see a sailor on the water front lugging his bird and cage to some new berth.

Bad Break.

Wife—Why did you give that photograph away just before we were married? Didn't you think I could use it? Husband—My dear, I gave it away to keep peace. Don't you know that no house is big enough for two talking machines?

And at the last report he was still trying to square himself.—Detroit Free Press.

In these busy times, when you have a story to tell, for heaven's sake make it short.

Among other pipe dreams are those of the church organist.

WOMEN AND FASHION

What Is Home?

Should the family exist for the home or the home for the family? Look around you and see how often the former is the case. The great majority are engrossed in "keeping up appearances." The home as a place to live in and be happy in is entirely lost sight of.

Many women have so much house and furniture to care for that they haven't any time left over for their children. Father wears himself out in the everlasting grind "down town" to pay for a house and meet the running expenses of a home entirely too elaborate for the family's needs and certainly beyond his income. He speculates—gamble, some people call it—cheats, even steals outright to keep up this "home." Mother erases her worried frown at the parlor door when callers are announced, but puts it on again once they have gone. She, too, is burdening her soul with petty deceits and missing the essence of life in trying to "keep up an establishment." The children catch the spirit of the thing and place a higher valuation on clothes than on character. That's the only way to keep up "appearances," and it's the only thing they have learned in the "home." Such people are placidly ignorant of world issues; they know nothing of topics of general interest and lack the essentials of real culture, yet none of these things appears so necessary in their eyes as the latest society wrinkle and knowledge of what constitutes "good form."

Poverty has its compensations after the face it is because the skin is too dry. Anoint the surface every night with a good skin food after having washed the face in warm water. This will get the skin in good condition. Before applying the powder to the face it is well to anoint it first with a little cream, wiping off the thickest before the powder is used.

An English author assures one that a woman is not naturally vain, like a man.

In Amsterdam there is a factory where 400,000 diamonds are cut annually. Most of the work is done by women.

On her recent visit to New Orleans Mrs. Maude Ballington Booth passed at least one strenuous day. She preached at a prison in the morning, held an informal reception in the mid-afternoon, then preached at the house of detention, after this held another reception, then addressed the Era club, which wound up with a third informal reception.

more attractive panel designs, and there is every indication that much liberty will be allowed in this connection throughout the summer. The tunic, thus far, is confined to formal costumes, but is frequently suggested—more or less vaguely—by the method of garment. This means that a panel, or a series of panels, is sometimes crossed, or at least supplemented, with a band, either of braid or of self material, curved, and otherwise shaped to outline a tunic. And again, it means that a plain skirt may have the bands so arranged that the skirt is, to all effects, in two parts.

Being "Good Friends."

To be what is called "good friends" with one's wife, one's husband, one's brothers and sisters, with that peculiar assemblage of people who are connected with us by ties of blood, is to possess one of the greatest, perhaps the very greatest, element of earthly happiness. And to have in the world outside a few choice friends who know your thoughts and aspirations, sympathize with your sorrows, and come to you with their own, and find you sympathetic in turn, loving you and beloved by you—this is the gateway of heaven. "Blest be the tie that binds."

Advice to Brides.

Don't buy "unusual" patterned dinner or tea services. Get something that when breakages occur can be easily matched without much expense. White all. Not the grinding poverty that means poor food and insufficient clothing, but that happy-go-lucky lack of peace that allows one to live in an unfashionable neighborhood and send John to the university.

STUNNING STYLES IN SPRING GOWNS.

The mistress of such a home is the "house-mother" indeed. The welfare of each member of the family circle is more to her than polished mahogany and oriental rugs could ever be. "Jimmy" can bring his boy friend in to play games, and no one is barred from the "best room" because the sun will fade the carpet.

When you come to think it over, father gets only his board and lodging for his services—and unless love is added to these his wage is poor indeed!

Home should be a sanctuary from the world without, a place where nothing is too good for the family, and where perfect understanding and harmony reign. It may be a little bare room or a palace, but lacking love it is not home.—Jessie M. Parton.

Health and Beauty Hints.

For sore throat try a compress of cold water.

Tincture of arnica is the best application for sprains or bruises.

Don't forget that hot and tepid baths are the best beauty preservers.

To prevent bilious attacks take a glass of hot water every morning the first thing.

Vaseline rubbed on the skin in mild cases of erysipelas relieves the burning and itching.

Cold tea applied several times a day with a soft linen cloth is an excellent remedy for inflamed eyes.

A good gargle for sore throat is just enough permanganate of potash to give a glass of water a faint rose tint.

If you suffer from too high color give up during the period of one month all other meat than fresh fish and poultry. Do not take oatmeal or strong condiments. Green stuffs and milk may be indulged in freely.

No sleek person should be compelled to step out of bed without slipping on soft wool bed shoes, for the chill that would not affect a well person may be dangerous to the weak ones. A loose robe of flannel or elderdown is also needed when a patient is able to sit up for a few minutes, as to have the bed made.

When powder does not adhere nicely graphs taken just about twice as often in the long run as brunettes," remarking a photographer. "The reason is easy; blondes take better pictures than brunettes. The lighting effects are better when the subject is a blonde. A blonde girl may get a photograph that will flatter her, where one of a brunette, taken under the same conditions, will not even do her justice."

Supposing the yoke of a waist has become soiled or shabby, it may be brought up to date with very little trouble by substituting one of net, the braiding on it to be simple, just rows one after the other, or as elaborate as one chooses. When a waist is worn under the arms it could be neatly mended and kimono sleeves of the net added. They would cover the mended portions. These capes should be hemmed with a strip of the waist material, if available, and if not, then a plain piece of ribbon harmonizing in color with the waist may be used. Another economy is to use narrow ribbon that has done service on a summer frock—to form a yoke and deep cuffs. It is put on in alternating rows with fagoting or sewed down to a coarse net. This kind of arrangement freshens a waist.

If one has any nice lace on hand, even though of different kinds, then it might be a good idea to buy a couple of yards of flit or Brussels net, combining the two in a smart waist for afternoon or matinee wear.

While the gored skirt is well liked, the circular and circular gored skirt show every sign of increasing vogue. Either style lends itself to the band trimmings, as well as to the newer but is as nice as anything, and always looks well. But remember that fluted things are more difficult to keep clean than plain ones, as they need to be scrubbed periodically. Let "little and good" be your motto when shopping. It is far better to start only with a little really good furniture, even only enough for two rooms, than to have a houseful of badly made and finished things, that if ever you are in a better position you will be ashamed of.

The Mature Romp.

A physician has recently made the announcement that for many reasons he regards dancing as one of the most healthful amusements, and one which he frequently recommends to his patients. Although this statement may come as a surprise and stimulus to some dancers, it is to be feared that, if the truth were known, there are a great number of men and women who romp about ballrooms for very much the same reason that others take an early morning canter around the park or a Turkish bath.

A Fair Proposition.

It is a fair proposition that if John expects Mary to be just as neat, tidy and winsome after marriage as before, he himself should likewise be as attentive, courteous and generous a husband as he was a lover. There are many husbands and wives who fall down in these particulars. Where these directions are followed by both partners there is quite likely to be a happy home.

To Take on Flesh.

Drink plenty of water.
Eat plenty of starchy foods.
Sleep ten hours out of the twenty-four.

Give full play to the lungs in breathing.

Refuse to worry.
Take six raw eggs a day.
Drink plenty of cream and milk.
Exercise only moderately.

Hottentot Women.

Among the Hottentots women hold a better position than do anywhere else in Africa. "The married woman," says one traveler, "reigns supreme mistress. Her husband cannot without her permission take a bit of meat or a drop of milk." Generally "they rank much above the average of the negro races."—London Spectator.

CROSSROADS OF THE PACIFIC.

Rear Admiral A. T. Mahan, U. S. N., world-famous expert, author of "Influence of Sea Power on History" and other important works on naval strategy, says that to anyone viewing a map showing the full extent of the Pacific, two circumstances will be strikingly and immediately apparent. He will see at a glance that the Sandwich Islands stand by themselves in a state of comparative isolation, amid a vast expanse of sea; and, again, that they form the center of a large circle, whose radius is approximately the distance from Honolulu to San Francisco. This is substantially the same distance as from Honolulu to the Gilbert, Marshall, Samoan and Society Islands, all under European control except Samoa, in which we have a part influence.

To have a central position such as this, and to be alone, having no rival and admitting no rival, are conditions that at once fix the attention of the strategist. But to this striking combination is to be added the remarkable relations borne to the great commercial routes traversing this vast expanse.

Too much stress cannot be laid upon the immense disadvantage to us of any maritime enemy having a coaling station well within 2,500 miles, as this is, of every point of our coast line from Puget sound to Mexico. Were there many others available we might find it difficult to exclude from all. There is, however, but the one. Shut out from the Sandwich Islands as a coal base, an enemy is thrown back for supplies of fuel to distances of 3,500 to 4,000 miles—or between 7,000 and 8,000 going and coming—an impediment to sustained maritime operations well-nigh prohibitive.

The Fretful Baby.

Fretfulness in an infant is a dangerous signal, and indicates that something is wrong with either the child or its mother, says the Youth's Companion. The child is sick or in pain or discomfort, or else it has been allowed, through poor management by the mother or nurse, to contract a peevish habit.

An infant which is manifestly ill is likely to be fretful, but in this case the fretfulness is obviously a symptom of the disease. But there are many other cases in which this condition is not so distinctly associated with disease, yet there must be some cause for it, which should be searched for and removed when found.

The most common causes for fretfulness are pain, discomfort and hunger. A great variety of conditions, some obvious, others obscure, may produce pain. It may be due to beginning disease of the spine or in the hip or some other joint. In such a case, which is very rare in a well-nourished infant, but does sometimes occur, besides the fretfulness and occasional screaming fits during the day, the baby is apt to give a scream now and then in its sleep at night. The child who does this repeatedly every night, or nearly every night, should be very carefully examined as to its spine and its joints. In order that disease, if present, may be detected early and treated promptly.

Another uncommon cause of pain in the young infant is inflammation of the ear. In this case the pain is usually very acute, and finds expression in screaming rather than mere fretfulness.

Infantile scurvy is accompanied by great soreness of the muscles, which causes the child to cry pitifully whenever it is taken up or handled in any way. Most commonly, however, the fretfulness of pain is due to indigestion, evidenced by vomiting, constipation, or diarrhea.

Discomfort from creases in the clothing, the rubbing of a frayed edge of cloth, or the scratching of a concealed pin will make the sweetest-tempered baby peevish.

Hunger will naturally make a baby peevish, but it is bad practice to stop the child's mouth with milk or give him a "comforter" to suck upon whenever he cries. The fretfulness itself should not be treated, but its cause should be sought for and removed.

To Ward Off Pneumonia.

One of the most active causes of death in cold weather is pneumonia, says Good Health Magazine. This disease is directly due to the growth of a special germ in the lungs, but a still more important cause is the predisposition induced by wrong habits of life.

Lowered vital resistance resulting from chronic intestinal auto-intoxication, sedentary habits, feebleness of the heart from deficient exercise, living in overheated rooms, overeating, high-protein diet, especially the free use of fresh foods, the use of tobacco, alcohol—these are the most potent and predisposing causes of pneumonia, and prepare the way for this great destroyer which in recent years has increased in frequency and fatality until it has come to be the most active of all causes of mortality in human beings.

For many years tuberculosis led the mortality list, but now pneumonia stands at the head, and the disease seems to be increasing every year. Pneumonia germs can not be exterminated, but it is easily possible to build up the resistance of the body so that pneumonia germs, even though constantly encountered, can do no harm.

A simple dietary, a clean alimentary canal, active exercise out of doors, sleeping in cold, pure air—these are the best safeguards against pneumonia.

GOT SQUARE WITH JUDGE.

How the Georgia Mountaineer Had His Fine Remitted.

A raw mountaineer got back at Judge Mose Wright of the Rome circuit, in a very clever way, says the Atlanta Georgian. While the judge was presiding over the Chattahoochee Superior Court he had occasion to plaster a $15 fine on this man because he failed to appear in time as a witness in a case. "Say, Judge, hain't that purty steep?" mildly inspired the Chattahoochee.

"No," was the reply. "You know you were an important witness in this case and ought to have been here. I will suspend payment, however, and hold it over you to see that there is no like trouble in the future."

Later Judge Wright was spending a few weeks at Menlo, a popular summer resort in Chattahoochee County, several miles from a railroad. He had a package to come out from Summerville and the big mountaineer happened to deliver it.

"Well, what do I owe you?" asked the judge, genially, reaching for his change pocket.

"Wall, Judge, I reckon about $15 would square us," was the calm reply. "What?" yelled Judge Wright, staggering back.

"Mebbe you won't be so dern keerless next time 'bout leavin' yo' packages," was the imperturbable answer.

"Look here," whispered the perturbed jurist, "I'll just remit that $15 fine I put on you down in Summerville."

"Gid ap, Beck. That 'bout squares us, Judge."

It's true, all right, because Judge Wright tells it on himself.

Running No Risk.

"What," asks the maiden aunt, "going to marry that Mr. Newwun? Why, you hardly know the man, Imogene. In the few days you have been acquainted with him you cannot possibly have learned anything of his family or antecedents or habits or personal circumstances."

"That is true, Aunt Keturah. But you have always told me that no woman who knows anything about a man will marry him."—Success Magazine.

Thankful.

"I tell you wat," said the first kid, "we ought to be mighty thankful that our folks use gas stoves."

"Why?" asked the second kid. "Coz nobody was ever asked to split wood for a gas stove, was they?"—Detroit Free Press.

What a difference it makes when you feel good! Why not devote a little attention to feeling good? That is, why not eat and drink with a little care? Such a course will pay big dividends.

Some people marry for love and remain married for spite.

S.S.S. HEALS OLD SORES

No old sore exists merely because the flesh is diseased at that particular spot; if this were true simple cleanliness and local applications would heal them. Whenever a sore or ulcer refuses to heal readily, the blood is at fault; this vital fluid is filled with impurities and poisons which are being constantly discharged into the place, feeding it with noxious matter and irritating and inflaming the nerves and tissues so the sore cannot heal. These impurities in the blood may be the remains of some constitutional trouble, the effect of a debilitating spell of sickness, leaving disease germs in the system, or the absorption by the blood of the fermented refuse matter which the bodily channels of waste have failed to remove. Again the cause may be hereditary, the diseased blood of ancestry being handed down to posterity; but whatever the cause, the fact that the sore will not heal shows the necessity for the very best constitutional treatment. There is nothing that causes more worry and anxiety than an old sore which resists treatment.

Every symptom suggests pollution and disease—the discharge, the red, angry looking flesh, the pain and inflammation, and the discoloration of surrounding parts, all show that deep down in the blood there are morbid and dangerous forces at work, constantly creating poisons which may in the end lead to Cancer. Local applications are valuable only for their cleansing and antiseptic effects; they do not reach the blood, where the real cause is located, and can therefore have no real curative worth. S. S. S. heals old sores by going down to the fountain-head of the trouble and driving out the poison-producing germs and morbid matters which are keeping the ulcer open. It removes every particle of impurity from the circulation and makes this life-stream pure, fresh and health-sustaining. Then as new, rich blood is carried to the place the healing begins, all discharge ceases, the inflammation leaves, new tissue and healthy flesh are formed, and soon the sore or ulcer is well. S. S. S. is the greatest of all blood purifiers and finest of tonics, just what is needed in the treatment, and in addition to curing the sore will build up and strengthen every part of the system. Special book on Sores and Ulcers and any medical advice desired furnished free to all who write. THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

I want to recommend S. S. S. to any who are in need of a blood purifier, and especially as a remedy for sores and obstinate ulcers. In 1877 I had my leg badly cut on the sharp edge of a barrel, and having on a blue woolen stocking the place was badly poisoned from the dye. A great sore formed and for years no one knows what I suffered with the place. I tried, it seemed to me, everything I had ever heard of, but I got no relief and I thought I would have to go through life with an angry, discharging sore on my leg. At last I began the use of S. S. S., and it was but a short time until I saw that the place was improving. I continued it until I removed all the poison from my blood and made a complete and permanent cure of the sore. J. O. ### THE GREATEST WEDDING.

Over Twenty Thousand Persons Were Married in One Ceremony.

The biggest wedding ever known to history was when Alexander the Great and over 10,000 of his soldiers took part in a wedding in the court of Darius, king of Persia, after the latter's conquest by Alexander. Twenty thousand two hundred and two persons were made husbands and wives in one ceremony.

The facts are these: After conquering King Darius, Alexander determined to wed Statira, daughter of the conquered king, and issued a decree that on that occasion 100 of his chief officers should marry 100 women from the noblest Persian and Median families. He further stipulated that 10,000 of his Greek soldiers should take to wife 10,000 Asiatic women.

For this purpose a vast pavilion was erected, the pillars being sixty feet high. One hundred gorgeous chambers adjoined this for the 100 noble bridegrooms, while for the 10,000 soldiers an outer court was inclosed. Outside of this tables were spread for the multitude.

Each pair had seats and ranged themselves in a semi-circle round the royal throne. As it would have taken several weeks for the few priests to have married this vast number of couples had the ceremony been performed in the ordinary way, Alexander invented a simple way out of the difficulty. He gave his hand to Statira and kissed her, and all the remaining bridegrooms did the same to the women beside them, and thus ended the ceremony that united the greatest number of people at one time ever known.

Then occurred a five days' festival, which for grandeur and magnificence never has since been equaled.

Legal Information

The United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit in Hillhouse v. United States, 152 Federal Reporter, 163, holds that automobiles come within the classification of "household effects," under the tariff act of July 24, 1897. This decision is largely based on the case of Arthur v. Morgan, 112 U. S. 495, 5 Supreme Court Reporter, 241, 28 Lawyers' Edition, 825, wherein the United States Supreme Court held that carriages were properly classified as "household effects."

If the conductor of a street car, while engaged in the prosecution and within the scope of his business in collecting fares, fails and refuses to give a passenger correct change, and upon request therefor draws a pistol and fires at the passenger, but the ball misses the passenger and strikes a woman passing on the public street through which the car is running, causing her death, the street car company is liable, according to the decision of the Georgia Supreme Court in Savannah Electric Company v. Wheeler, 58 Southeastern Reporter, 38.

A person may be guilty of smuggling even before he has passed the custom lines on the docks of an incoming steamer, according to the decision of the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York in United States v. 2184 Carats Loose Emeralds, 153 Federal Reporter, 643. When the proper customs officer examines an incoming passenger's baggage, and questions him whether he has any personal property which he has not declared, such passenger is obliged to state the truth, and when the examination is finished, and the passenger still has precious stones in his possession without having admitted it, the act of smuggling is complete.

A number of southeastern railroads gave notice of an increase of rates on lumber in 1903. Before the rate became effective, a bill was filed in the United States Circuit Court to restrain the establishment of the new rate as being unreasonable. A temporary injunction was granted, but later dissolved, on the condition that the reasonableness of the rate should be passed upon by the Interstate Commerce Commission. The commission found the rates to be unreasonable. A supplemental bill was then filed to obtain restitution of the excess of rates charged in accordance with a prior stipulation that, if complainants prevail, a decree of restitution might be made. A decree was so rendered and affirmed by the Circuit Court of Appeals. Upon appeal to the Supreme Court it was again affirmed. Railway Co. v. Tift, 27 Supreme Court Reporter, 709, 206 U. S. 428.

A Domestic Breakdown. A well-known lord discovered a thief in his London house. Aided by the butler, he secured the man and then rang the bell. A servant appeared, whom the peer requested to "go into the kitchen and bring up a policeman or two." The domestic returned and said there were no policemen on the premises. "What!" exclaimed his master in incredulous tones. "Do you mean to tell me that with a cook, two scullery maids, a kitchen maid and three housemaids in my employ there is no policeman in the kitchen? It is indeed a miracle, and our prisoner shall reap the benefit. Turner, let the man go instantly!"—London Standard.

There should be some title placed before a man's name to show that he is married. His face never tells whether he is or not. A woman is labeled with "Mrs." Why should not a man be?

The Crucifixion.

When I survey the wondrous Cross
On which the Prince of Glory dy'd,
My richest gain I count but loss,
And pour contempt on all my pride.

Forbid it, Lord, that I should boast
Save in the Death of Christ my God;
All the vain things which charm me most
I sacrifice them to His Blood.

See, from His Head, His Hands, His Feet,
Sorrow and love flow mingled down!
Did e'er such love and sorrow meet,
Or thorns compose so rich a crown?

His dying crimson, like a robe
Spreads o'er His Body on the Tree;
Then am I dead to all the globe
And all the globe is dead to me.

Were the whole real of nature mine,
That were a present far too small;
Love so amazing, so divine,
Demands my soul, my life, my all.

Encouragement.
It may not be our lot to wield
The sickle in the ripened field;
Nor ours to hear, on summer eves,
The reaper's song among the sheaves.

Yet ours the grateful service whence Comes, day by day, the recompense:
The hope, the trust, the purpose shaded,
The fountain and the noonday shade.

And were this life the utmost span,
The only end and aim of man,
Better the toil of fields like these
Than waking dream and doubtful ease.

But life, though falling like our grain,
Like that which revives and springs again;
And, early called, how blest are they
Who wait, in heaven, their harvest day!

HE IS A GOOD SAMARITAN.

Looks After the Undeserving Poor— Says No One Else Will.

There is a rich man in a Southern city who makes the undeserving poor his peculiar care, says the Independent.

His methods in dealing with what he calls a fresh sinner are unique and he regards them as scientific from the heavenly point of view. He insists upon a full catalogue of the victim's transgressions.

He claims that this is done on the theory that a physician first administers an emetic in case of poisoning. Then if the patient is an utterly lost and abandoned woman, he frequently takes her home with him, where she is quartered in the guest chamber and treated by the family as the welcome guest whose presence there is in no way remarkable.

For our scientist claims that it is the loss of the sacred home consciousness in such women which casts them so far down, and his purpose is to restore the same by his own fireside, which is particularly attractive, in that he has a wife and many young children. Nothing is said to the forlorn one to remind her of her shame; she is simply left to get well, as the scientist expresses it. And it is astonishing how many of them do get well. His boast is that he has married his girls happily all over the country, for he is an enthusiastic believer in wedlock. Upon a recent visit to a distant city he remarked to the editor: "I married one of my girls off in this town; couple doing well; moving in the best society. Good as the rest, too, now. But it's a secret; if society knew it would abolish her." He winked in conclusion, at the expense of society.

He cannot make a speech, but he is an eloquent splutterer; and although his manner to ministers is wittily deferential, he has been known to ruin a preacher's meeting and make the victims of his burning incoherence look like rows of paper dolls blown before the breath of a living disciple.

An Anchor to Windward. The solemn-faced man who drove the stage between Willowby and Greenfield never lost an opportunity to display his knowledge to a new passenger, nor had he ever been known to suppress his opinion on any subject, no matter what it might be. "They tell me you're the man that wrote the story that's running in one of the big magazines. I forget which 'tis," he said one day to a cheery passenger who had been endeavoring to ask a few questions himself. "I believe I am," admitted the gentleman.

"I've never turned my hand to writing," said the stage-driver, flicking his horses in meditative mood. "No, sir, I've been too much took up with other things, but I read everything, most. I was having a little talk with Bill Sears about you yesterday. We'd both been reading your last book before this new one. Now, do you rely entirely on what you write for a living?"

"Not entirely," said the author, with due humility. "That's what I thought when I finished the book," and the stage-driver looked kindly at the man of letters. "I'm real glad for ye that you've other means," he said, benevolently. "Got 'em well invested, I expect, too. I told Bill Sears that was most likely the case."

"I hope," says a man of 20, "that things will be better to-morrow." "I hope," he says when he is past 40, "that they won't be any worse."

What is Pe-ru-na?

Is it a Catarrh Remedy, or a Tonic, or is it Both?

Some people call Peruna a great tonic. Others refer to Peruna as a great catarrh remedy.

Which of these people are right? Is it more proper to call Peruna a catarrh remedy than to call it a tonic?

Our reply is, that Peruna is both a tonic and a catarrh remedy. Indeed, there can be no effectual catarrh remedy that is not also a tonic.

In order to thoroughly relieve any case of catarrh, a remedy must not only have a specific action on the mucous membranes affected by the catarrh, but it must have a general tonic action on the nervous system.

Catarrh, even in persons who are otherwise strong, is a weakened condition of some mucous membrane. There must be something to strengthen the circulation, to give tone to the arteries, and to raise the vital forces.

Perhaps no vegetable remedy in the world has attracted so much attention from medical writers as HYDRASTIS CANADENSIS. The wonderful efficacy of this herb has been recognized many years, and is growing in its hold upon the medical profession. When joined with CUBEBS and COPAIBA a trio of medical agents is formed in Peruna which constitutes a specific remedy for catarrh that in the present state of medical progress cannot be improved upon. This action, reinforced by such renowned tonics as COLLINSIA CANADENSIS, CORYDALIS FORMOSA and CEDRON SEED, ought to make this compound an ideal remedy for catarrh in all its stages and locations in the body.

From a theoretical standpoint, therefore, Peruna is beyond criticism. The use of Peruna, confirms this opinion. Numberless testimonials from every quarter of the earth furnish ample evidence that this judgment is not over enthusiastic. When practical experience confirms a well-grounded theory the result is a truth that cannot be shaken.

Manufactured by Peruna Drug Manufacturing Co., Columbus, Ohio

In a meeting of a prominent woman's club, one of the members made a humorous criticism on the character and performances of man, who, she said, significantly, was created immediately after the brutes. And in Current Literature for April there was a symposium by a lot of anonymous philosophers, such as a "street car conductor," a "tenement-house commissioner," and a "judge"—they were afraid or ashamed to give their names—who cheerfully express the opinion that women, as a sex, are wholly destitute of "honor." It is a singular freak of human nature that whenever a person becomes irritated by the character or conduct of another person the fault is ultimately attributed to the offending person's religion, nationality or sex. This blundering conclusion may be the result of prejudice against a certain religion, nationality or sex, or it may be the effect of sheer shallowness and ignorance. But if it is not the result of prejudice it is sure to beget it. The harsh criticisms of women by men and men by women are to be viewed in this light. They betray an utter absence of close observation and reasoning. And where the criticisms are not those they are to be deprecated, as tending to produce what are called "men haters" and "women haters," and to give false ideas of life.

miniature fire department in each school, to consist of two companies made up of the older boys, one company to have charge of a chemical fire apparatus and the other to see that all exits are open, the fire-escapes clear, etc. These companies would be drilled by the local firemen. Such a plan, the chief believes, would protect the schools and scholars, give the boys a training that would be useful all their lives, and improve the regular fire departments by recruiting from these school brigades.

The chief's plan, as published in the East Orange Gazette, is as follows: "There are housed in our schools and other institutions hundreds of thousands of children and young people for whom it is our pleasure and duty to provide the very best protection our minds can evolve. The property values represented by these institutions and their equipment are getting to be so vast that, considering only the financial side of the question, nothing should be neglected that will help protect the property values.

In buildings such as we are now considering—public and private schools, orphan homes, houses of refuge, houses of correction, reformatories and the like—there should be the ordinary fire-fighting devices, such as hand extinguishers in each room and corridor, a stand pipe with hose connection on every floor, and a special fire alarm box connected with the city alarm system. But a great benefit may ac-cure to the children themselves by organizing the older ones into a company as fire-fighters and as a salvage corps.

Where hundreds, perhaps thousands, are gathered in one school, the discipline necessary to be maintained destroys nearly every opportunity for developing leadership.
Children are taught to obey and to follow. These are important lessons, but equally important is it that our boys learn self control and to lead and to command. The plan I mention contemplates also the development of still another side to the character, viz: That of protecting and defending the lives and property of others. Boys who are trained as I have indicated would be a great asset to any community in case of a fire like that at Collingwood, and as men they would be proof against a foolish stampede.

Fire drills in charge of teachers have saved hundreds of lives; supplemented by well drilled companies such as I have mentioned,
many more might have been rescued and immense property values saved."

Modern first class battleships
now cost nearly $10,000,000 each.
In other words, a ship of the Deleware class, now building, represents to the railroad man about 43 miles of railroad, to the cotton merchant 200,000 bales of cotton, to the college man enough funds to run the universities of Chicago, Wisconsin, Yale, Princeton, Harvard, Cornell and Columbia one year, and to our women, 200,000 hats at $50 apiece, to say nothing of the satisfaction entailed in being the possessor of such a luxury.

The average cost of the twenty-eight battleships now in commission in the United States navy is $3,257,120. The costliest of any of this fleet was the Connecticut at $4,212,000, and the cheapest the Kearsarge and Kentucky, which cost each $2,250,000. The Deleware and North Dakota are considered in this calculation. They will cost in the neighborhood of $10,000,000 apiece, and would consequently raise the average considerably.—R. and M. News.

If campaign buttons are any indication of the sentiment of those by whom they are worn, Thomas Cale, the laboring man's friend, will get a pretty good vote in this section of Alaska. The voters of Alaska are getting wise to the fact that it is poor judgment to delegate anyone who is in any manner identified with the moneyed interests to represent them in congress. All of us know where Hoggatt, Gugg & Co. stand on matters of paramount interest to the great majority of Alaskans—the common people—and they also know that Tom Cale will oppose these moneyed interests to the last ditch in their efforts to get their clutches onto the throttle of Alaska's resources. And that is why those little Cale buttons are so numerous.

There are now in commission in the United States navy twenty-five battleships and four others under construction, and it is estimated that any one of the newer ships is equal to the entire fleet with which Dewey fought the battle of Manila so successfully ten years ago. This is a very satisfactory showing of progress, but no more so than is needed to keep pace with what the other nations are doing. In fact, it looks as if this policy must be closely followed indefinitely if we would always find ourselves prepared as we are now for an emergency.—Ex.

The decision of the St. Michael Trading Company to not allow children on and around the wharf unless accompanied by adults, is a timely one. Some of the boys who sell papers make a practice of jumping on and off steamers before they are made fast, and other little fellows take chances around the taut mooring lines that are enough to make ones hair stand on end, and it is merely a piece of good fortune that some of these children have not been killed or drowned.

Reports from the cities of the eastern states, during the past two or three weeks, have been recording temperatures away up about the hundred mark, and that, too, when Alaska has been seeing the mercury at not over 75. Isn't it strange that people who can afford to travel will pant and sweat in a city while Alaska, with her scenic beauty and glorious climate, lies within such easy reach?

It may seem to some that THE SENTINEL is inconsistent in advocating the election of Thomas Cale for delegate to congress. SENTINEL is a republican paper, but it considers Tom Cale the best man out out of the bunch of candidates, because we believe he is unfavorable to monopolistic dictation of Alaskan affairs, and also a strong supporter of home government.

With five candidates in the field for delegate to congress, the voters of Alaska ought to be able to pick one man who will not require the assistance (?) of the toy governor.
